

16-Year-Old Oloroso Cask Finished American Whiskey

BACKGROUND

Brothers. Bootleggers. Legends. Nearly a century ago, Jacob and Abner Taub crafted and bootlegged their own whiskey during Prohibition to support their family. Then one fateful winter night in 1929, their world came crashing down during a sting that would land the brothers behind bars. Six long years later, Franklin D. Roosevelt pardoned the Taub brothers. They were able to reignite their family business with their brother Martin and help launch Baltimore Club Whiskey. This would set into motion a family tradition that would span generations. The brothers served their time, and now, you can spend time enjoying Jacobs Pardon, a fine American whiskey that pays homage to their rebellious roots. Its complex, smooth, timeless, and frankly, a little liberating. It would be a crime not to enjoy it.

TASTING NOTES

Wheat field golden color; superb clarity. Upfront aromatically, there are mature, roasted scents of toasted marshmallow, dried tropical fruits (pineapple, guava especially), winter holiday spice cake, cinnamon bun, clove, and nutmeg; later inhalations detect traces of candied almond, honey. Entry features tangy flavors of orange zest, dried orange peel, and grape jam; midpalate stage shows a more bittersweet side than the juicy entry, showing zesty/piquant tastes of butterscotch, grilled pineapple, and sweetened breakfast cereal. Finishes extra long, satiny in texture, and bittersweet
