

Cabernet Sauvignon 2023

BACKGROUND

Situated on a high plateau in the Uco Valley of Argentina's Mendoza region, the Portillo (meaning "path" or "gateway") winery and vineyards are dedicated to making superb quality wines for everyday enjoyment. Harmony with nature is readily apparent in every aspect of this property, which is designed to deliver wines that capture and respect the pristine beauty of their birthplace. Portillo's state-of-the-art winery is largely built of local materials, including stones quarried from a nearby valley. This enables the facility to better blend in with the surrounding environment. Built on three levels, each 16 feet deep, with much of the facility concealed below ground, Portillo is also notable for its employment of a gravity-flow system. This minimizes handling of grapes and helps protect the integrity of the fruit. The facility's ingenious design, which takes careful advantage of the gentle slopes on which it is built, is thought to be unique in South America.

TERROIR & VINTAGE NOTES

Framed by the snow-capped Andes, Portillo's Cabernet Sauvignon grapes are sourced from the El Oasis estate situated 3,772 feet above sea level. The benefits of this high location are many, including greater thermal fluctuations between day and night temperatures. This leads to longer hang-times for the grapes, resulting in a superior balance between sugars and acidity and thicker skins in the red varieties, which in turn yields greater intensity of color and aroma. This microclimate offers a supremely healthy environment in which to grow grapes.

WINEMAKING & AGING

The grapes were harvested with state-of-the-art machinery and destemming performed in the vineyards, with only the berries reaching the winery, where they were transferred to tanks for cold maceration. For fermentation, remontage was performed thrice daily. Following this, the wine underwent post-fermentation maceration on its marc with constant tastings. After racking, the wine underwent malolactic fermentation and remained in the tanks until bottling.

TASTING NOTES

Aromas of blueberries, mulberries, currants and lavender. A lush mouthfeel, fruit-forward with a balanced and silky finish.
